Travel Expenses

How much does your company spend on travel? Even small firms are finding that their travel and entertainment budget can account for between five and six per cent of operating costs. For large multi-national companies the costs can be even higher.

In fact many firms have no clear idea of how much they are spending on sending executives to international conferences.

Mr. Smith, a London-based travel consultant, has spent the past year looking at the ways companies deal with their travel expenses. “Very few of the companies I studied could tell me exactly how much they were spending on travel. Only one or two had thought about introducing a system to control expenses”.

Mr. Smith gives the example of TransEurope ASP, a Danish transport company. “Everyone I spoke to in the firm assured me that regular trips abroad were a vital part of the work of senior executives. Nobody asked themselves if all this travel was necessary and nobody seemed to know how much it was costing the firm”.

In fact when Mr. Smith sat down with TransEurop's chief accountant they found that travel and entertainment costs together came to a staggering $2.1mln in a year.

Mr. Smith claims that every medium-sized and large company needs a clear policy on controlling its travel costs. He proposes a four-point plan which companies can introduce over a period of six months to a year.

- Travel expense audit. Begin by asking yourself how the company spends its travel budget at the moment. How much are we spending? How are expense claims processed? Where can we make the biggest cost savings?

- Setting up a policy. Once you have decided how much the company can afford to spend you can begin putting your ideas into action. The plan should involve the company's main travel suppliers – travel agents and airlines – as well as those executives who have to travel most frequently.

- Managing the policy. For larger firms this could mean appointing a full-time travel manager who would be responsible for controlling travel costs and for communicating the policy to other people in the company. This is not a feasible option for most small companies.

- Policy review. From time to time you might need to change your policy to take account of any new offers in the travel market. Many airlines now offer special deals for companies with frequent travelers.

2. Read the text and try to understand the main idea of it. How can you title it?

In today's rapid society, people can afford to spend less time for eating, let alone cooking. That is why eating out has become so popular, and there is no doubt that it's here to stay. In fact, it seems that you simply can't get away from it. People are too busy to cook and eat proper meals. Young people pick up the idea that speed means excitement, whereas anything traditional is slow and boring. As a result, they turn down traditional food and go for eating out instead. While eating out we can choose from a wide range of eating places. The busiest tend to be fast food restaurants which are popular with young people and families. Many people eat out in Italian restaurants, Chinese and French restaurants are also popular.

In different countries people have their own traditions while eating out. Brazilians never eat lunch at the office; they always use a knife and a fork to eat, even for pizza or sandwiches. Many Filipinos like eating soup, meat, vegetables and a lot of different sauces. Rice is a part of their every meal – they even make desserts with rice and coconut milk. In Finland there are a lot of national dishes such as smoked fish and hot soups. In the streets there are stalls which sell sausages, Finland's favorite food.

One of Britain's best known meals which represents British cuisine is fish and chips. It can be served both in luxurious restaurants and pubs. The fish is covered in batter (made from eggs, milk and flour) then fried in hot oil. When cooked, the batter is crispy and the piece of fresh fish inside is soft. This is served with chips, pieces of deep-fried potato, which are then sprinkled with salt and vinegar.

As a rule British people have breakfast, lunch, dinner and supper. The most substantial is dinner which consists of a starter, the main course and dessert. For certain reasons most British people prefer to have a meal at home. For those who are not afraid to experience eating out it is recommended to go to the restaurants. There is a varied menu at the restaurants. The staff are very friendly, helpful and polite. They look smart in their uniform. The service is fast and efficient. Splendid decor, good music, an exclusive wine list add to healthy appetite and good emotions.

Unfortunately many people today have unhealthy eating habits. Teenagers eat more processed food than ever before. When eating out, they choose fast food restaurants for the obvious reasons. They are cheap, and filled with people their own age. However, fast food restaurants are not the only source of unhealthy food. The modern day families have both parents working outside the home and this means parents don't often have the time to prepare healthy nutritious meals for their family.

This is laundry slip you might find in your room when you check into a hotel. Sometimes when you're traveling, you have to wash, and iron your clothes, or have them laundered, and you might have some of them cleaned. If you want to press (or iron) your clothes yourself, you can usually get an iron from the maid. If you don't want to do it yourself, take advantage of the laundry and dry cleaning service most hotels offer.
